

Identity & Point of Departure

KALLIERGON syn: The power of togetherness

KALLIERGON syn emerges from the meeting of people with diverse backgrounds, united by a shared belief in collaboration as a creative, social, and cultural act. It is conceived as a living platform of thought and action, where art, science, and the environment engage in meaningful dialogue. Rooted in the value of togetherness, KALLIERGON syn approaches culture not as an isolated field, but as an active force that shapes human experience, collective awareness, and our relationship with place and time.

People & Interdisciplinarity: Where disciplines meet

The collaboration between Christina Tzialla (theatre scholar, performing arts artist, and playwright) and Vasiliki Kateri (visual artist) is further strengthened by the participation of Sakis Zaravelas (MD, PhD, orthopedic surgeon) and Rania Tzialla (PhD, MSc, materials engineer). This interdisciplinary constellation forms an open field of exchange, where artistic practice, scientific knowledge, and research coexist and inform one another. Through this meeting of disciplines, KALLIERGON syn cultivates a holistic approach to creation, inquiry, and action.

Vision & Action: What we do and why

At the core of KALLIERGON syn lies the development and implementation of innovative ideas, projects, and services across culture, science, the environment, and society. Guided by the principle “strength through unity,” the organization creates frameworks for collaboration that encourage cultural exchange, education, and active engagement with contemporary social and environmental challenges. Each initiative seeks to connect knowledge, experience, and creativity in ways that generate meaning and impact.

Our Way of Working: Collaboration as practice

KALLIERGON syn evolves organically, step by step, following the natural flow of conditions and remaining in close dialogue with time, place, and both the urban and natural landscape. Its mode of operation is grounded in cooperation and adaptability. Through collaborative processes, challenges are transformed into creative opportunities, producing work and experiences that are responsive, inclusive, and open to partnerships in Greece and internationally.

Name & Symbol: Kallos and Ergon

The name KALLIERGON is a neologism derived from two Greek words: kallos and ergon. The term kallos does not refer to outward beauty or appearance. It denotes a deeper sense of aesthetic quality, harmony, and cultivated value—an understanding of beauty rooted in meaning, balance, and the conscious shaping of the human spirit. Ergon, on the other hand, signifies work, action, and practice. Together, kallos and ergon express the idea that aesthetic cultivation is inseparable from action: that beauty, understood as aesthetic and ethical value, emerges through engagement, effort, and purposeful creation. The spiral depicted in the logo was chosen as a symbol that permeates all expressions of matter and life itself. It represents movement, self-generated momentum, evolution, and continuous search, a dynamic process that leads to the cultivation of the human spirit and to an ongoing enhancement of the quality of human experience.

The syn: Together

The word syn encapsulates the core philosophy of KALLIERGON syn: together. Togetherness as synergy. Togetherness as mutual support. Togetherness as collective creation. It is within this shared space that ideas are cultivated, relationships are formed, and meaningful futures can emerge. Because only together can we cultivate the present and shape what comes next.
